Confronting the Economic Downturn

Jewish communal agencies across North America and around the world are working to ensure that they continue to provide their vital services. JCSA member organization, the Jewish Community Foundation of San Diego, led by CEO Marjory Kaplan, held a community-wide forum addressing "Strong Governance in Weak Times," with more than 100 participants at the day long event. They shared strategies, including:

- Stick to your organization's mission and avoid mission drift
- Increase oversight of finances and investments by convening often
- Explore new sources of income
- Review the organization's strategic plan and budget, making adjustments if needed
- Create effective donor communications and connections

The program also included this inspiring message from Gail Littman, Director of Endowments, Jewish Community Foundation of San Diego.

Gail Littman

“The birkat hamazon, the prayer for thanksgiving after a bountiful meal, recognizes that it may be in times of great success that we believe we did it all on our own and might forget upon whom we depend and owe gratitude. In want and in plenty, in fear and festivity, we need to remind ourselves of the orientation of heart, soul and behavior that will offer in resiliency, the ability to manage our circumstances with faith in ourselves and in others. Because that is what resilience really is -- the ability to face life with courage, optimism and determination, knowing that there will be good times and difficult times, but that we can get through them all because we have what it takes and because we are part of something of great meaning and importance.”

IAJVS Mobilizes to Confront Unemployment Crisis!

International Association of Jewish Vocational Services (IAJVS) has developed a national strategy to help confront the evolving unemployment crisis. Executive Director Genie Cohen stated, "IAJVS, an affiliate of JCSA, has historically been one of the major 'first responders' to address rising unemployment."

IAJVS issued a white paper "Without Work" to emphasize the problems associated with the escalating massive increase in U.S. unemployment and to publicize the commitment of the organization to developing and implementing programs and services that will get people back into the workforce. The full paper may be downloaded from the IAJVS website at www.iajvs.org

Local Groups

JProDC

February 4th, 9-11 a.m. at the JCCGW. Dr. Erica Brown will facilitate a discussion for JProDC on "Dealing with Difficult People." Whether it is a grouchy colleague, a pushy donor, a disaffected client, or a truly difficult board member, this interactive session will help participants act and react in a positive values framework.

June 3rd, 9:30 a.m.-4 p.m. at Adas Israel Congregation. The Shulamith Reich Elster Lifetime Achievement Award, and the Jewish communal worker with the Young Leadership Award are meant to highlight lives spent in dedicated service to the Washington Jewish community. They mean so much more when the awardees are nominated by their peers. Submit, by email, nominations for Lifetime Achievement (a community worker who has served for at least a decade in DC, and whose influence has touched a broad segment of the community), and for Young Leadership (a professional under 35 years of age, who has spent less than 10 years in Jewish communal service.).

For more information about these events or to send in your nominations email, info@jprodc.org.

AJP NYC

January 26th, 2009-Cook a meal with AJP NYC for a homeless shelter! We all know how important it is to give back to the community. Let's give back while we network together as Jewish communal professionals! AJP NYC will be cooking for a homeless shelter on the upper west side, which is a service project of a few community churches as well as Congregation B'nai Jeshurun. If you are interested in learning more about this, or signing up, please e mail Belinda Lasky at blasky@bj.org.

B'nai B'rith International

JCSA Member Agency Spotlight: by Ian Hutchinson JCSA Intern

B'nai B'rith International, celebrating its 165th anniversary, focuses on work related to humanitarian services and human rights advocacy in the Jewish community. Since 1843, B'nai B'rith has supported community development through Jewish unity, security, continuity, and tolerance. Their belief that aid, as a whole, is the right for everyone, regardless of religious affiliation, makes them effective in communities around the globe. With experience bringing disaster relief programs to communities in need, including victims of Katrina and the Sri Lanka Tsunami, B'nai B'rith has extended their reach to more than 50 countries worldwide. B'nai B'rith's goal of improving international and inter-communal relations has led to the creation of new synagogues and churches as well as cooperation with the Pope to bolster Jewish-Catholic relations. B'nai B'rith is able to maintain its voice in the political/religious arena by being the only Jewish communal organization that has a full-time office at the United Nations.

Through a number of programs, B'nai B'rith advocates for professional development not only for current professionals, but for youth, as well. Their Diverse Minds youth writing challenge is a contest for high-school students to write children's books about diversity. These books, aimed at elementary-aged children, teach tolerance and acceptance through a positive message of peace. By promoting cultural competence in our youth, B'nai B'rith is laying the foundation for developing Jewish communal professionals dedicated to diversity. The contest is open to public and private high-school students living in Los Angeles, New York, Washington D.C., and parts of Virginia, Maryland and Minnesota. A winner is selected in each city from a panel of local judges. The winning author not only receives a $5,000 scholarship, but has their book sold on Amazon.com. The winning book is given out to schools, libraries, and community centers free of charge. Another program, Aging In Place, provides help for families that want to learn how they can keep aging loved ones in their home. In this seminar, participants can listen to experts on aging, gerontology, house architecture, and how to make your home safe for loved ones who need assistance.

To continue serving the Jewish community over the next decade and beyond, B'nai B'rith maintains that the organization exists to serve the community. Each month the agency selects a theme specific to a social need around the world. For the month of December, the focus was community service. During this period, B'nai B'rith focuses its resources to programs and services that give hope to those who need it most. For example, Project HOPE is a program providing food to the poor and elderly during Passover, in places such as Philadelphia, Boston, New York, Washington D.C., Baltimore, and Connecticut. Local Jewish Organizations offer lists of those in the community who are in need and B'nai B'rith members partner with community and Jewish agencies in these areas to provide assistance.

Dear JCSA Benefit Plan Members:

During these difficult, volatile, and trying economic times that we are all experiencing, it is comforting to know your JCSA Benefit Plan Administrators are always available for consultation on retirement planning and insurance matters.

We were all horrified to learn of the fraudulent and seriously harmful acts that Bernard Madoff committed and how many in the Jewish Community were affected.

It is important to be vigilant in knowing that we strive to maintain a good reputation and provide experienced, professional service.

We are most pleased to be the plan administrators for JCSA for the past 43 years; your most trusted advisors.

Please give us a call if you have any questions or concerns with regard to your individual retirement and insurance planning needs, 1-800-597-9245.
