A grant to a Jewish senior center in Budapest provided fitness equipment to help community elders stay strong and healthy.

With intense heat threatening the lives of the most vulnerable Jewish elderly, a grant to the American Jewish Joint Distribution Committee outfitted 15 senior centers throughout Russia with air conditioning units.

More than $120,000 was granted to provide immediate and longer-term relief to those whose lives were devastated by the earthquake.

Five years after Hurricane Katrina, New Orleans is still rebuilding. A grant helped build a new playground for a neighborhood whose park was destroyed. The new structures helped bolster community and return of young families to the area.

Pakistan
As flooding ravaged the North, grants to purchase sanitation systems in Pakistan provided clean water to thousands.

Southeast Asia
An estimated 2.6 billion people in the world do not have toilets, two-thirds in Southeast Asia. A grant to the World Toilet Organization supported advocacy for improved toilet conditions and sanitation in the region.

Israel
Approximately 8% of grants were directed to programs in Israel. Grants addressed a wide range of basic needs such as feeding the hungry and caring for the elderly. Assistance also focused on systemic change efforts like strengthening the ability of the non-profit sector to effectively provide services. Grants to the Jewish Federation of San Diego also supported important programs in Israel and around the world.
